Throughout the country law enforcement officers said they felt under siege after a string of deadly attacks on police, CNN reported.

In 2015, at least 30 law enforcement officers have been shot to death in the U.S., including NYPD Officer Randolph Holder who was shot in the head by a suspect in October.

Police Commissioner William J. Bratton said Holder is the fourth NYPD officer to be killed in the line of duty in the past 11 months.

ists, the same losers you see in Guy Fawkes masks at every protest in America. They break a few windows and occasionally set a fire. They're nothing to be afraid of.

Unless you count all the right wing, gun nut yahoos that showed up at that deadbeat rancher's place in Arizona all armed to the teeth and then started bragging about having federal workers...ordered their by a judge... in their gun sites. That's the kind of anarchists we've become used to lately. The kind you are referring to don't run around pretending to be rambo and threaten federal workers with automatic weapons.

an citizens are at the breaking point with Police abusing their authority. The shoot first, ask questions later mentality of Cops is coming around to haunt them. When the lines between a Soldier and Police are blurred, the result is anarchy. Cops need to change their ways and stop treating citizens as the enemy. Then people will begin to respect cops again. Until that happens, cops will reap what they sow.

I love when people think they know the perfect way to fix every situation if they were in the officers shoes...if police officers were treated with more respect and not bashed constantly things would be vastly different

This is just an anarchist liberal group, the same people that riot in cities like Seattle because of a G8 meeting.
