Viral Video Of Obama’s Anti-American Rally Disappears Suddenly

Thursday, the latest video-gone-viral of what appeared to be a young Barack Obama participating in a Kenyan anti-American rally was abruptly pulled from news and popular video websites across the nation.

Within an hour of the original post, the 30-minute clip had accumulated an impressive 300,000 views. Then, it virtually vanished from the internet.

When questioned, Whitehouse Public Affairs officials denied any involvement, stating, “This sort of thing happens all the time. The news companies most likely decided the video was a hoax and simply removed it out of embarrassment.”

Websites involved have refused to issue official statements regarding the incident.